Small Business Fair Dismissal Code

Commencement

The Small Business Fair Dismissal Code came into operation on 1 July 2009.

Application

The Fair Dismissal Code applies to small business employers with fewer than 15 full-time equivalent employees.

Small business employees cannot make a claim for unfair dismissal in the first 12 months following their engagement. If an employee is dismissed after this period and the employer has followed the Code then the dismissal will be deemed to be fair.

Employees who have been dismissed because of a business downturn or their position is no longer needed cannot bring a claim for unfair dismissal. However, the redundancy needs to be genuine. Re-filling the position with a new employee is not a genuine redundancy. The requirements for determining whether a dismissal was a genuine redundancy are contained in section 389 of the Fair Work Act. The Small Business Fair Dismissal Code Checklist attached to this document can assist in determining whether a redundancy is a genuine redundancy.

Further information on the application of the Code, genuine redundancy and unfair dismissal is available at www.fairwork.gov.au or by contacting the Fair Work Infoline on 13 13 94.

The Code

Summary Dismissal

It is fair for an employer to dismiss an employee without notice or warning when the employer believes on reasonable grounds that the employee's conduct is sufficiently serious to justify immediate dismissal. Serious misconduct includes theft, fraud, violence and serious breaches of occupational health and safety procedures. For a dismissal to be deemed fair it is sufficient, though not essential, that an allegation of theft, fraud or violence be reported to the police. Of course, the employer must have reasonable grounds for making the report.

Other Dismissal

In other cases, the small business employer must give the employee a reason why he or she is at risk of being dismissed. The reason must be a valid reason based on the employee's conduct or capacity to do the job.

The employee must be warned verbally or preferably in writing, that he or she risks being dismissed if there is no improvement.

The small business employer must provide the employee with an opportunity to respond to the warning and give the employee a reasonable chance to rectify the problem, having regard to the employee's response. Rectifying the problem might involve the employer providing additional training and ensuring the employee knows the employer's job expectations.

Procedural Matters

In discussions with an employee in circumstances where dismissal is possible, the employee can have another person present to assist. However, the other person cannot be a lawyer acting in a professional capacity.

A small business employer will be required to provide evidence of compliance with the Code if the employee makes a claim for unfair dismissal to Fair Work Australia, including evidence that a warning has been given (except in cases of summary dismissal). Evidence may include a completed checklist, copies of written warning(s), a statement of termination or signed witness statements.

Small Business Fair Dismissal Code Checklist

The Checklist is a tool to help small business employers comply with the Small Business Fair Dismissal Code. Completing the Checklist does not mean that the Code has been complied with, nor is it a requirement of the Code that the Checklist be completed. However, completing the Checklist will help small business employers assess and record their reasons for dismissing an employee. It is in the interests of the employer to complete this checklist at the time of dismissal and to keep it in case of a future unfair dismissal claim.

Employers should read the Code before completing the Checklist, ensuring they understand their procedural obligations under the Code. Meeting these obligations is an important factor in complying with the Code.

1. How many full-time equivalent employees are employed in the business? (Include the dismissed employee and any other employee dismissed at the same time).
 - Under 15 full-time equivalent employees
 - 15 full-time equivalent employees or more

[If under 15 full-time equivalent employees, the Fair Dismissal Code applies.]

2. Has the employee been employed in this business as a full-time, part-time or regular casual employee for 12 months or more?
 - Yes
 - No

[If No, the employee cannot make an unfair dismissal claim.]

3. Did you dismiss the employee because it was a genuine redundancy? In other words, was the dismissal because you didn't require the person's job to be done by anyone because of changes in the operational requirements of your business?
 - Yes
 - No

4. If Yes	YES	NO
a. Did you comply with any requirements in a modern award, enterprise agreement or other industrial instrument that applied to the employment, to consult (eg with employees and/or their representatives) about the redundancy?	<input type="checkbox"/>	<input type="checkbox"/>
